COMMITS SUICIDE

Attorney J. H. C. Denman, Who Was Disbarred, Kills Himself

J. H. C. Denman, the Indianapolis attorney, who was recently disbarred by a jury in the Marion county circuit court for fraudulently obtaining money from his client, Mrs. Frankie E. McCrady, formerly of this city, shot himself at 11:45 Friday morning in his office in the Holliday building. He died shortly after 2 o'clock. Denman had until 11:45 o'lock to settle a claim against him and thus prevent a deputy sheriff from seizing his office furniture and library. Some time ago Denman borrowed $315 from Clarence A. Tucker, and at various times paid back sums aggregating $117. When the balance was not forthcoming, Tucker brought suit and got had until 11:45 to settle the claim, or minutes after the shot was fired the officer came to take possession of Denman's effects to satisfy the claim. Arthur Sanford, a contractor, who has an office adjoining that of Denman's, said he had threatened several times to kill himself after the disbarment proceedings, but no one thought he was talking seriously. The contractor said Denman had brooded over his troubles, and several additional debts contracted, only added to his his legal practice and he had little income. Denman was about 50 years of tice in all the courts of the state October 28. The disbarment proceeding grew out of transactions between him and Mrs. Frankie E. McCrady. Denman was an expert accountant and The affair was nicely gotten up and was employed to examine the First the arrangements carried out in every National Bank of this city, after the he returned to Indianapolis, stated to Mrs. McCrady that he could secure the release of her husband, who had been sent to the Leavenworth, Kan., prison. The release was to be effected for $10,000, one-half of which was to be paid as a retaining fee and the balance when McCrady was allowed to leave the prison. Mrs. McCrady testified in court that Denman obtained about $2,000 from her by means of false representations. She stated that through these misrepresentations she turned nearly all of her funds over to Denman's care and that he embezzled all of this money with the exception of $500 which she had agreed to pay to him as his attorney fee. Denman did not obtain McCrady's release and it was alleged made no

There is an indictment now pending against him in the criminal court at Indianapolis, charging him with embezzlement, growing out of his alleged fraudulent transactions with Mrs. McCrady. Denman has been in straitened circumstances for several months, it appears, and the additional worry of the suit against him, it is thought, led him to take his own life. ### Suggestions About Jewelry --- Ingen-Hanger signing and making hand wrought jewelry. Fobs of copper set with variscite, a pretty green stone, and mounted on tan suede of a heavy quality are very smart. It is a fashion, too, to have belt buckles made out of old watch cases and from old picture frames, not to mention charming girdles from old fashioned chased and fretwork napkin rings. The ring is cut into perpendicular strips, the strips being fastened together with silver chains in an ornamental design. Old coins are often joined together for dog collars, and quaint buttons are set in metal bands for fillets. These are only a few suggestions for girls who are interested in arts and crafts work.

Make an inch wide hem on the four sides and hemstitch it on one or both edges of the drawn threads, as preferred.

Hold the square to you with a point at the bust line, and at the waist line shape it by several groups of fine lengthwise tucks to form a small bib top. On each side of the point so formed put ties of the material two inches and a half wide. These may be hemstitched all around, or they can be hemmed on the edges and finished in a deep hemstitched hem at the bottom.

This dainty apron is capable of many variations. In addition to the hemstitching, a bowknot design can be worked in the corner that forms the bib and at the bottom corner directly below it, or the four corners can be embroidered, those opposite the bib line taking a smaller motif.

An individual touch can be given by hemstitching as described and working in the bib corner a large oval medallion with a monogram in the center. Touches of color could be introduced in the embroidery with good effect.

The girl who has time for a little things for herself or preparing for Christmas, should start work on the butterfly handkerchiefs.

Bedroom Slippers

They have been sold in the shops for some time, imported from Paris and costing quite a bit of money.

A girl can make them at home if she is clever with her needle. If she has been doing any of the butterfly applique in underwear which has been the fashion this season she will be expert enough to start on this other work.

The foundation is a sheer fine handkerchief with a tiny hemstitched edge. Either one or several butterflies are cut from sheer colored silk mull and applied to the linen.

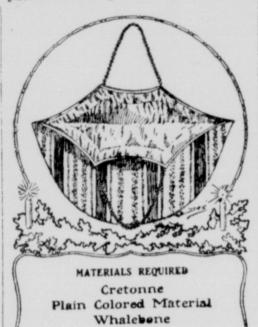

They can be all of one color or in different colors and embroidered at the edges and up the center to give the coloring of a real butterfly.

Some girls may prefer just one butterfly with widespread wings in a faint color, such as lavender, pink, yellow

"PASSING THE TRAY."

A New Custom In Fashionable Restaurants.

One of the most attractive features of modern hotel and restaurant service is what is known as the "passing of the tray." This is now quite a matter of course at many fashionable establishments, whether the time be the luncheon, the tea or the dinner hour. On this tray is arranged an artistic assortment of morsels of pastry, each one on its own small doily of lace paper or fine linen, the effect being often extremely decorative. Slave to Servants.

"I am very tired." said the fashionably dressed woman. "I have been working dreadfully hard all day. Doing what? Why, seeing to my servants-working for them. Didn't you know that the more servants you have the harder you must work? Certainly. I have to do all the shopping for my servants. ### A Fashion Chat on Long Coats.

The liking for the princesse style has increased rather than diminished, with the months, and it is still on the crest of popularity. Topped by one of the long semifitting garments, either of the identical fabric or merely of the same color, but of a different weight, nothing is more chic for immediate street wear, and, from all appearances and the predictions of the best authority, this style of street dressing is to be the modish thing for many months to come.

Materials have been especially provided for this purpose, and one sees counters heaped with fabrics of similar shade but of a vast difference in weight. Rough, shaggy cheviots and serges come in all the most soughtfor and unusual tones, and in the same shadings are soft cashmere-like woolens and silk-warp combinations, made for the fashioning of frocks to be worn underneath coats of the heavier weight fabric coats of the heavier weight fabric.

An inspection of the new separate coats is quite sufficient to warrant the average woman in making her coat first and then matching it to a frock. To tell the truth, this is done more frequently than is usually be-lieved. With a smart coat, perfect in outline and bearing all the ear-marks of a fresh fall model, the frock designed to be worn under it, may, for street wear at least, be simplicity itself.

Velvets are fashionable for long mantles. Moire velvet is one of the most popular of the novelties, velvet and ornate passementeries are popular. It is quite natural that these materials and trimmings should be revived as pointed basques, panniers, broad side-pockets and other characteristics of the Louis period are being exploited and shown on numerous models to-day.

Serge in its various weights is perhaps the most stylish of all woolen fabrics for suits and for separate long coats for general wear, although homespun, hopsacking, cheviot, whipcord, diagonal, broadcloth, mea's suitings, camei's hair, tweed, checks and indistinct plaids are all very popular, and water-proof silk, satin, double faced cloth having a plain outer surface and plaid inner one and wool materials are used for storm coats.

The new evening wraps are, generally speaking, of simple style, and for that reason may be undertaken by the woman who does her own sewing, if she has a good pattern to start with. The wrap here depicted, is Pictorial Review Pattern No. 2895 of broadcloth with moire collar and buttons giving ornamentation. Here's a Way to Save.

American housewives are slow to learn that the tomato paste found at Italian groceries is an economy in cooking whenever tomato sauce or flavoring is wanted. A ten cent can of paste contains many times its bulk in the whole vegetable since the water is evaporated from it. A family which depends upon the paste for everything that calls for tomatoes, excepting the real vegetable flavoring, cooks macaroni in this way: The macaroni is first boiled tender in salted water. Then it is put into the upper part of a double boiler with a cupful or so of boiling water, a teaspoonful of tomato paste. a finely minced Spanish sweet pepper and a little curry powder and cooked nearly half an hour. Parmesan cheese in a separate dish is served with it. Another way is to make a tomato sauce in the usual way and add to it minced green or Spanish red peppers

Among the Twenty-Two Men Who Have Been Let Out on Charges of Being Implicated in the Sugar Trust Frauds Are Four Who Held High Official Positions-Collector Loeb Says He Has Been Working to This End Ever Since He Took Hold and That the Investigation Is Still Going On.

New York, Nov. 20 .- When Collector Loeb announced the discharge of J. Vail, formerly deputy surveyor in charge of the weighing division; George E. Bedell, an inspector and formerly chief clerk in charge of the same division; James P. Hyland and Joseph O'Carroll, foreman of weighing districts, and eighteen other weighers and gaugers whose names are not mentioned in the official report given out at the custom house, the weeding out from the customs service of the men who have been implicated in the sugar frauds and other schemes to cheat the government, but against whom no evidence of actual commission of crime has been obtained, began in earnest. So far as could be learned the men granted immunity and a retention of their jobs for testifying against Philip Musica at his trial for cheating the government out of duties on cheese, are included among the men whose heads have gone into the basket. Whether or not any of the discharged employes will have to face criminal charges later is a question which both Collector Loeb and United States Attorney Stimson refused to answer.

Vail and Hyland are the men who were accused by Philip Musica of teaching him the ways to cheat the government. Musica during his trial said that Hyland introduced him to Vail as "one of our clients," and that Vail told him, "I guess we can take care of you." Musica also said that when things got warm he met Vail by appointment on a ferryboat and that Vail told him to get away as soon as he could. Vail at that time, although not called to refute Musica's testimony, denied that he had ever seen Musica before the trial began.

Collector Loeb refused to add any details to the statement which he gave out, or discuss what further action, if any, may be taken with regard to Vail, Hyland and the others. Mr. Stimson was equally reticent. He refused to say whether or not immunity would be granted in case any of the discharged men had evidence to give.

It is said that the removals, although not unexpected, have caused great anxiety among a large number of government employes who are still in the service, and that these men are expected to approach Mr. Stimson with an offer to tell what they know. It is understood that anyone who has really evidence which will close the door on many of the applicants.

Collector Loeb said that he had been working toward the removals since he took office. This, together with the announcement that "the collector is continuing his investigation," make it seem probable from the report that evidence which will win dismissal or justify the accusations. Cherry, Ill., Nov. 20 .- While the work of taking out the bodies of the hundreds of dead miners is just beginning, an extraordinary session of the Illinois legislature to furnish relief and conduct an investigation into the St. Paul mine disaster has been asked. A fund of $25,000 is suggested, and it is thought likely that the session will be called. This new phase of the disaster is accompanied by later developments of new horrors in the mine. Men, mules and burning coal are mixed in the great piles that block the galleries. Collapse of the ceiling buried many of the miners. Others are supposed to be floating in the water that has half filled the third vein. Not for ten days can the great mass of mutilated and decomposed bodies be brought up. Three shifts of rescuers are at work in the shaft

The few bodies thus far brought up are proof that the horrors of the mine fire had not been guessed. Care was taken to bring up the bodies quietly and to calm the relatives who identifled them, but scenes of despair and grief were enacted that made the morbid sightseers shrink away ashamed of their intruding curiosity.

The condition of the bodies recovered shows clearly that they died from suffocation and that they had been dead several days. Superintendent Steele declared that his assertion that death came to every man in the mine before sundown Saturday, the day of the fire, is clearly demonstrated by the try. disclosures.

Water was poured into the mine during the fire without quenching it. The water was converted into rivers on the floors of the veins where lay the dead. The heat of the flames boiled this water and in it were cooked the bodies of the unfortunate miners. That they did not die by fire is evident, because the clothing was not even scorched.

Washington, Nov. 20 .- It has not been determined what course this government will take in connection with the execution of Leonard Grace and Leroy Cannon, American citizens who were shot in Nicaragua. The government is marking time. The character of the next step of the United States will depend on the response received by Secretary of State Knox from Hen-Caldera, the American vice consul Managua, Nicaragua, who was instructed to investigate the facts in the case of Cannon and Grace and send a full telegraphic report to Washington without delay. Mr. Knox is anxious also to learn the Nicaraguan version of the incident which will be contained in President Zelaya's response to Mr. Knox's demand for an explanation.

There is no official confirmation of the press reports that Grace and Cannon had been given a proper trial by court martial for complicity in a plot to dynamite troopships of the Nicaraguan government. The first reports of the incident from Mr. Caldera about Grace and Cannon did not mention a trial, and it was assumed by officers of the state department that this formality had been neglected by the Nicaraguan government. If Grace and Cannon were sentenced to death after a fair trial for endeavoring to blow up the Nicaraguan vessel and an investigation should not disclose any legal irregularities in their trial, it is probable that no drastic measures should bring out that the Americans were shot without a fair trial it is likesome excitement in Central America by taking aggressive measures to punish those responsible for the summary executions of the two Americans.

EIGHTEEN WORTHY ORGANIZATIONS

Have Been Entered in the Contest and Are Competing For the Three HIGH GRADE KRELL-FRENCH PIANOS

Offered by the Daily and Weekly Republican to the three most Popular Churches, Lodges and Schools in Seymour and Jackson County. Nearly all of these are working for one of the three fine prizes.

The voting Contest was started with two pianos, not more than one of which could be awarded to Seymour Candidates.

The third piano was added and will be given to the leading Contestant which does not secure one of the first two instruments.

So active are the Contestants and their workers that the Contest will be a remarkable struggle for honors and valuable prizes.

These pianos are manufactured by the Krell--French Piano Co., New Castle, Ind., and are sold in Seymour by the Van de Walle Music Co.

Christian Science Church Excommuni cates Mrs. Stetson.

New York, Nov. 19 .- Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, for two decades supreme in the affairs of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in New York, and recently freely mentioned as the successor of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy to the head of the Christian Science church. has received notification that she has been excommunicated from the church by the directors of the mother church in Boston. She had just returned to her home after the three days' ordeal church upon charges of malpractice and malversion of the faith, when the report of the Boston directors was brought to her. During her absence in Boston in behalf of her church, which two weeks ago had absolved her of all the charges upon which she had been admonished by the mother church, the congregation over which she had ruled supreme until the last few months had adopted a resolution subscribing its complete fealty to Mrs. Eddy and the church heads who united in forcing her excommunication.

Of her large circle of students, some of whom had been admonished because of their false doctrines at the same time that Mrs. Stetson had received her first admonition, there has not been one who raised a dissenting voice against the unanimous declaration of the congregation supporting the supreme authorities of the church against Mrs. Stetson. A statement was given out by the board of directors at Boston setting forth the fact that the offense proved against Mrs. Stetson had been two-fold: That she had been guilty of working against members of the faith who were not her personal followers, and guilty of teaching and practicing that which was not Christian Science.

PAUL STORY OF HIS LIFE. Lesson: 2 Cor. 11: 22-28 and 12: 1-10

GOLDEN TEXT:-He said unto me, My grace is sofficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. 2 Cor. 12: 9.

Story of His Life," and yet that seems to be more fully told in his testimony before Agrippa in chapter xxvi, or even in his address from the castle stairs in chapter xxii, or more concise; in Phil. iii, or more fully by putting these signed us for today's study are rather a resume of his sufferings, with special reference to his being stoned to record as that in chapter xi, 23-28, who is there today who has anything that can begin to compare with it in the matter of suffering for Christ's sake? At the time of his conversion the Lord said to Ananias, "I will shew him how great things he must suffer for my sake" (Acts ix, 16), and this seems in our eyes as if He had filled the bill quite fully. Let us understand a little more fully the service of suffering as set forth in Rom. v. 3; Phil. i, 29; Col. i. 24: Rev. ii. 10, and elsewhere. It is made unmistakably plain that by the suffering of Christ in our stead. as our sin bearer, all who receive Him sins (Col. i, 12-14). There is, however, another phase of the suffering question in Heb. ii, 10, where it speaks of bringing us to His glory and of Him as the captain of our salvation being made perfect through sufferings. He is our high priest, who can be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, for He was in all points tempted like as we are (Heb. iv. 15). Now, since by His atonement He has made us kings and priests unto God, having washed us from our sins in His own blood, and we are to reign with Him on the earth (Rev. i, 5, 6; v, 10), we must remember that to be fitted to reign with Him we must suffer with Him (II

Paul therefore says, "Most gladly will I glory in my infirmities that the power of Christ may rest upon me" (xii, 9). This is something like Phil. 1, 20, where he says. "Christ shall be magnified in my body. whether it be by life or by death."

> While Paul had unusual fellowship in suffering, he had also some unusual revelations. Not only was his conversion unique, but the various manifestations of the Lord to him afterward were very remarkable, as was also the revelation of "the mystery" of which he so often speaks. He tells us that, lest the abundance of the revelations should unduly exalt him, there was given him a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan, to buffet him. He tells us that he asked the Lord three times to deliver him from it, but the answer was, "My grace is sufficient for thee, for my strength is made perfect in weakness" (verse 9). I do not know how we can be quite sure as to what this thorn in the flesh was till Paul himself shall some day tell us if it is best for us to know. Some one has said that we are not told what it was in order that if any one has a thorn in the flesh he may find a bit of comfort in supposing that that was just what Paul had. This certainly is ical infirmity and cannot get it removed by prayer or by the physician's skill then the answer to Paul must be accepted and the Lord trusted for grace to bear it meekly for His glory, for, while these words were said to Paul, they were written for us. As to the special vision and revelabeen about the time that Paul was folks, too." Washingtkon, Nov. 19 .- Some time ago the comptroller of the currency made up his mind that Phil Allen, jr., vice president of the failed First National bank of Mineral Point, Wis., had come more nearly violating every statute in his work of looting the bank than any other official of a failed bank in the history of the comptroller's of-

According to the reports of the receiver Mr. Allen, who is now under indictment as the principal agent in the work of looting the bank, has been guilty not only of the usual offenses against the national banking act, such as falsification of records, but it has been proved to the satisfaction of the receiver as shown in his report to the comptroller that Allen committed forgery and larceny.

Allen, the receiver says, took the securities which farmers and other confiding persons brought to him for safe keeping and sold them and converted the proceeds to his own use. He forged the names of prominent citizens of Mineral Point and vicinity to any number of notes, says the receiver, and took the proceeds. But the comptroller of the currency was hardly prepared to learn that Allen had forged the name of his pastor to a note for $200 which was found among the assets of the bank

Receiver Scofield, in a report sent to the treasury department, advised the comptroller of the currency of the find he had made and added that he had decided the looting of the bank appeared to be almost complete. The creditors may not receive more than 10 per cent on their claims. The amount of forged paper may reach the sum of $500,000.

Allen was a religious worker as well bought a bottle of it a few days ago as a banker. When not engaged in superintendent of the Sunday school. The people seemed to have had unlimited confidence in him. The directors of the bank believed in him so implicitly that they seldom met, and according to the receiver's report had not held a meeting for six months prior to the failure of the bank.

A so-called "credit committee" of the directors, whose nominal duty it was to pass on the securities and collateral in the bank, reported to the receiver that the members had never held a meeting. They explained that they had full confidence in Mr. Allen.

Women Run Their Homes In Trust to Luck Sort of Fashion.

"It is a constant source of surprise to me that the women who are intrusted with the running of the house and in great part with the disposition of the funds manage as well as they do," said a business man the other "In the average business concern the item of cost, for instance, is as vital a matter as that of income or receipts. Pencils are sharpened down to fine points, and pennies and fractions of pennies are counted. No great business is run without a distinct knowlas well as of the merchandise sold.

'Yet a woman runs her house and buys clothes for herself and her children all in a trust to luck sort of way and generally comes out pretty well in the end at that. And it's a wonder she comes out as well as she does.

"Why," continued this mere man, who happened to be a salesman for a big wholesale grocery establishment.

That's what business men do, but most women just shut their eyes and take a leap in the dark, and the wonder is that they land safe and sound, as often as they do.

The Intelligent Trout.

A correspondent says that when fishing in a small river he booked a small trout. "After a little I managed to pull him free, and he came along the surface side up toward the landing net without further resistance. Finding the line a little too long, I began to reel in, carelessly allowing the rod to drop almost to the straight, when the fish. then only a foot or two from the shelving shore, suddenly recovered his wind. The water was but two or three inches deep at the spot, quite still and clear, with one or two small patches of surface grass on it. Instantly the trout rushed at one of these patches and seized the grass in his mouth, holding on for all he was worth and defying me to drag him free.
